

Challenges that produce big fun + big results

adventure series

Everybody needs a break every once in a while! As opposed to our other, more “cerebral” programs, our Adventure Series programs are designed for fun, challenge and building relationships. Each of these exciting, half-day adventures are designed to enhance strategic thinking, problem solving, communication, decision making, resource allocation and execution.

It is amazing how much you can accomplish when it doesn't matter who gets the credit.

The Quest for Zampopo

The Quest for Zampopo requires hunting for the equipment necessary to move hidden Giant Zampopo eggs back to their nest 50 feet above the ground - before they hatch!

- Teaches the value of efficiency, taking risks and learning from experience
- Illustrates the value of a mutually supportive relationship
- Gives everyone a chance to lead and follow

Team Odyssey

Challenge Discovery's Team Odyssey at the University of Richmond! A completely team-focused ropes course located in a beautiful, easy-to-access location on the U of R campus.

Teams can succeed only when their members embrace their teammates, make good use of everyone's physical and cognitive abilities, execute a plan, and literally provide the stability and support necessary for completing challenges such as the “Matrix,” “Complex X” and “Lateral Limbo.”

- Builds stronger relationships for stronger teams
- Divides groups into “pods” of up to fifteen people who take on multiple team challenges from 20-35 feet in the air
- Simultaneously engages participants on the ground before and after their climb with energizers and initiatives
- Includes short debriefing sessions throughout in which Challenge Discovery facilitators help teams review their strategies and set goals to make upcoming challenges even more successful
